KSC.JUSNREM Policy Papers

Open call for interest

Evolutionary, Strategic and Anticipatory Intelligence

A developing policy-paper series by Khurram Chughtai

KSC.JUSNREM invites practitioners, researchers, public-sector professionals, technologists and scholars to engage with a series examining lawful authority, institutional competence, public accountability and the responsible use of digital and intelligent systems. Participation may concern one paper or the wider series.

> Current papers in pre-release review. This document is the invitation; full manuscripts are not included. Source verification and editorial checks remain incomplete.

Sovereign Intelligence

Constitutional authority, controllable digital infrastructure, federated capability, legal memory and institutional learning. The paper connects sovereign capability to technological dependence, continuity and public accountability.

Introduction and interest | View cover

Legislative Intelligence

Knowledge, scrutiny, institutional arrangements and corrective capacity throughout the legislative cycle, connecting constitutional and legislative practice with structured legal records, comparative analysis and Legal Intelligence.

Introduction and interest | View cover

Judicial Intelligence

Court-governed research, accessible procedural assistance and administrative order tracking, with attention to authority, human initiative, source stewardship, contestability, security and correction. Its service designs are proposals, not claims of court adoption or deployment.

Introduction and interest | View cover

Governance Intelligence

Data-driven governance, government analytics, GovTech and bounded GovAI, connecting legal sources, operational evidence, accountable officers and affected people throughout public-service delivery.

Introduction and interest | View cover

Ways to participate

Bring your perspective.

A short expression of interest is enough to begin.

Readers

Register interest in forthcoming papers, updates and opportunities to engage with their arguments.

Advisory Board and Panels

Offer strategic, disciplinary or institutional perspective on scope, research priorities, practical relevance and intellectual independence.

Reviewers

Assess arguments, sources, legal analysis, comparative claims, methods, technical designs or practical feasibility. Identify your topics and preferred types of review.

Editors

Express interest in substantive, legal and citation, language or technical editing, or publication design. Please distinguish your preferred editorial role.

Contributors and Writers

Propose a focused contribution, comparative perspective, practice note, case study, institutional design or research question, with relevant experience or sources.

Express interest

Tell us where you could contribute.

contact@ksc-jusnrem.io

Please include the paper or papers, your preferred role or roles, your name and a brief professional introduction, your expertise and proposed contribution. An optional link to relevant public work is welcome.

Suggested subject: Policy Papers | Paper title | Role

Read the full public invitation online

A clear starting point. Expressions of interest do not constitute an appointment, acceptance of a contribution, commissioning agreement or guarantee of publication. Any role, scope, timetable, attribution and applicable terms require separate agreement. No deadline or publication date is announced in this call.

Please do not send confidential client material, unpublished official records, identity documents or other sensitive information. Affiliation may be stated for context; participation must not imply institutional endorsement without authorization.

An email does not enrol you in an unrelated mailing list. See the legal and privacy information and correspondence guidance.